PASTOR'S COLUMN

“Preparing for Easter!

On Sunday, April 17th, we will celebrate Easter in our sanctuary. This will be an extra-special day since we have not had an Easter together since 2019.

Easter matters to our faith and the spirit of Easter is in the air. Many local churches are already advertising their Easter services. Families are looking forward to being together. Easter dinner menus may be set.

But before we celebrate the “Day of Resurrection,” I invite us to pay close attention to the final days of Lent and Jesus’ incredible love.

On Palm Sunday (April 10th) we will remember Jesus entering Jerusalem with the crowds waving their palm branches, shouting, “Blessed is the King who comes in the name of the Lord.”

We join Jesus and his disciples at the table for Maundy Thursday (7 P.M., April 14). Jesus will, once again, offer us the bread of life and the cup of salvation.

During our noon Good Friday Service (April 15) we will hear again of Jesus’s death on the cross and how his followers feared that they lost everything.

Then we will wake-up to the surprise of Easter Sunday. Death does not have the final word. “Christ is risen. Christ is risen indeed!”

May these final days of Lent prepare us for our best Easter ever!

MISSION OF THE MONTH

Jewish Social Services

Jewish Social Services is a nonprofit agency offering comprehensive assistance to people seeking to meet their basic needs. Jewish Social Services is a local beneficiary of the Jewish Federation of Madison, a partner agency of the United Way of Dane County, and a member of the Network of Jewish Human Service Agencies. Half of its funding comes from individual donors. Jewish Social Services serves everyone, regardless of religion or income level.

Jewish Social Services in Madison – the past 4½ years, JSS’ Resettlement Team has resettled refugees and SIV recipients from countries all over the world, including Afghanistan, in the Dane County Area. To help them prepare for a possible increase in arrivals, and to help those who have already resettled in Madison from Afghanistan and other countries, the most helpful thing we can do is provide financial donations to JSS.

Please consider supporting this fund to help the most vulnerable members of our community receive the resources they need during this challenging time. Please mark your check, or electronic giving “Jewish Social Services.”

Thank you for your generous support of this mission.

The MUMC Mission Team

PRAY WITH MADISON AREA JAIL MINISTRY

Join in prayer with MAJM & the Dane County community during Holy Week.

In the Garden of Gethsemane, Jesus invited his disciples to, “Stay here and keep watch with me.” (Matthew 26:38)

From Palm Sunday, April 10th through Easter Sunday, April 17th, we'll gather together in prayer for the common purpose of standing watch with Jesus, welcoming God’s will and presence in the deep places of need in Dane County.

Thank you for being part of MAJM & this shared week of prayer.

NO SUNDAY SCHOOL ON EASTER

There will be no Sunday school on Easter morning, April 17. Please join us for worship at 10:00am.

MUMC MEN'S GROUP

All men of the church are invited to the Men's Club breakfast that will take place on Saturday, April 9 at 9:00 am at Monona Garden Restaurant 6501 Broadway. Come and enjoy great food and fellowship.

HILLTOPPERS

The Hilltoppers group will be meeting on Monday, April 11 at 11am in fellowship hall. I will see if I can get someone to make coffee for the meeting. If anyone wants to bring individually wrapped snacks, I am sure they would be appreciated.

Our program will be presented by Pastor Paul Johnsen. I asked him about the subject matter for the meeting and he responded: "I will discuss modern day evangelism. (I will share the findings of my Doctor of Ministry thesis: Exploring the Effectiveness of Field-Preaching Evangelism in the United Methodist Church.) I hope this will be more interesting than it sounds."

I am sure it will be an interesting meeting.

THANK YOU

Dear Church Family,
Thank you for all the warm caring and support you've given through the past weeks of treatment for lung cancer. Your calls, cards and prayers give hope in this on-going journey. Many ask "What can I do?" The answer is to learn early warning signs of cancer and have your doctor check it out. Cancer found early is treatable / curable.

With great appreciation, Jean Van Dreel

JAVA JIVE

Adapted from the Equal Exchange Website

When you own the land, you farm, you decide what to plant, when to harvest, and which maintenance methods to use. More importantly, you're the one who controls your own livelihood. For Black farmers in the United States, land ownership is tied to freedom. But systematic racial discrimination has pushed many out of agriculture. Equal Exchange's partners at New Communities, who supply our fair trade pecans, know the power of land — and these challenges — firsthand. They farm in southwest Georgia, in one of the poorest parts of the state. Over the organization's fifty year history, these tenacious farmers have experienced more than their share of hardship and prejudice. Yet today, they are still farming and looking to the future.

By 1910, Black people owned more than 14 million acres of land. Black farmers in the South played an important role in the Civil Rights Movement.

But holding on to their acreage and turning a profit has proved to be an uphill battle.

White dominance at all levels of government in the South meant that Black farmers' interests were not protected.

New Communities, established in 1969, put cooperative values into action from the start. Shirley Sherrod says that she and the founders realized they needed to build something of their own in order to “use the skills they had to make life better.”

They then designed New Communities as America’s first community land trust, and it was owned and operated by Black farmers. At almost 6,000 acres, it was the largest parcel of land owned by Black people in the whole country.

The Office of Economic Opportunity promised New Communities money and gave them a planning grant. But protests from white neighbors convinced the governor at the time, Lester Maddox, to veto federal money that might benefit their project.

Today, just 1% of rural land is owned by Black Americans.

In 1997, Black farmers filed a class action suit against the USDA, Pigford v. Glickman. They alleged that the agency’s allocation of farm loans and aid between 1981 and 1996 was unfair. The USDA admitted to having discriminated against Black farmers and settled, agreeing to a payout of $1.2 billion in the first phase and over a billion in the second phase. “I was so busy helping farmers gather the information they needed for their claims to go to the lawyer,” Sherrod says. “I almost forgot about our loss.” New Communities filed its own claim in 1999. The hearings, appeals and reviews went on for a full decade. Finally, in 2009, New Communities was awarded $12 million.

New Communities’ new start:

Some of the original founders had scattered over the years, but Sherrod and others got busy finding land in the area of Albany, Georgia. They located an amazing property just outside the city limits: Cypress Pond Plantation, 1,638 acres once owned by the largest slaveholder and richest man in Georgia. He had owned nine plantations in total, but kept the largest number of enslaved people at Cypress Pond. “I had some problems with that, initially,” Sherrod admitted, “but I got past it, because I started thinking, what a statement for our people, that this property can go from a slave owner to descendants of slaves.”

Pecan cultivation:

At one point, most of the land had been planted with pecan trees, but when New Communities took over, only 85 acres of pecans remained.

“We planted an additional 115 acres to make it 200 acres,” Sherrod says. “We have young trees that are really, really producing.”

Last year, Equal Exchange bought all of their pecan halves and helped find a buyer for the pieces that are a result of the shelling process. Sherrod says their business is growing. “Without Equal Exchange, I am not sure of what we would have done because just like in the past, we would have been locked out of markets that actually would help bring in some income.”

Equal Exchange was lucky enough to have Shirley Sherrod join us as honored guest and keynote speaker at our 2020 Summit. This article is heavily based on Sherrod’s address. And we’re proud to partner with the farmers of New Communities to support their efforts as a model for future change. We think more people should know their story.

Please let us know your thoughts or suggestions. As always thanks for your support!!!

HELP WANTED

The church has a job opening for someone who has been pondering how United Methodists today could respond to the many social justice issues of our time from a Christian Perspective. While the United Methodist Social Principles are our guide to work toward a world that resembles what Jesus describes as the Kingdom of God, it is not easy. Surface understanding of each issue does not seem to be enough.

So, “Church & Society” is looking for someone who could help the congregation access information about current ongoings nationally and statewide in the areas of Voting Rights, Criminal Justice, Racism, Immigration, and Environmental Justice. This volunteer position would involve weekly monitoring of two unbiased organizations, Wisdom and the League of Women Voters, and sending out notices to the church constituency about where to access details about the issues that our church is currently focusing on.

If you are someone who likes to keep up with what is happening in our society today, why not help the rest of us gain better understanding of the social justice issues Jesus keeps calling us to respond to.

STEWARDSHIP - INVITING OTHERS TO BE A PART

“Ask, and it will be given to you; search, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened.” ~ Matthew 7:7

In his book Creating Generous Congregations, David Heetland tells a story about an 8-year-old girl who often gave more than a tithe from her nickel and dime allowance. She once gave her grandmother 38 cents in small coins “for missions.” Her grandmother then asked her, “Do you want this to go for homeless people, hospitals in Africa, or buying fish to stock ponds to feed the hungry?”

Her granddaughter replied, “Just a minute,” and returned shortly with 29 cents more, making a total of 67 cents to be divided three ways. She found each mission so important that her initial gift was instantly almost doubled so she could support all three.

Too often, we worry that when we ask someone to support a ministry with either their time or their money, the request will be taken as pushy (at best) or offensive (at worst). And there are certainly people who would take it that way.

On the other hand, I believe that not inviting people to support a ministry I’m excited about excludes them from being a part of something that may be transformational for them, and the people touched by the ministry.

Finally, there are many people who are just waiting to be asked to be a part of something bigger than them. They may not be the first to raise their hands when a general invitation goes out but would love to be personally invited to be a part of what God is doing through the church.
